Entity Relationship Diagram

This is the entity relationship diagram of BuwisBuddyPH to easily understand and map out the relationship of every database, including the cardinalities of the database.

Figure 1 shows a database design centers around the user table, which stores essential user information and connects to other modules for various functionalities. The tax calculator and budget expenses tables handle financial data, such as income, taxes, and expenses. The calendar and reminder tables manage scheduling and alerts, enabling users to organize their time effectively. The document table stores user-uploaded files with details like filenames and upload times. For community interaction, the forum table facilitates discussions, with the comment table enabling users to add responses. This structure provides a comprehensive and relational approach to managing user data, financial records, schedules, documents, and forums within a unified system.

USE Case Diagram

      This section visually represents the system's internal or business processes. Each use case describes a specific activity or series of user actions.

      This diagram shows how BuwisBuddyPH helps users, tax consultants/accountants, and tax authorities/admin manage tax-related tasks. Users can register, log in, manage profiles, declare income and expenses, and calculate taxes. Tax consultants provide guidance, help with tax planning, and assist users with filing and compliance. The platform also includes features like document management, notifications, payment processing, and report generation. It ensures regulatory compliance by connecting with tax authorities to streamline the tax process for everyone.
